GERMAN CONCESSION AT HANKOW.

TAKEN OVER BY THE CHINESE GOVERNMENT.

POWER TO ENFORCE MARTIAL LAW AT SHANGHAI

Shanghai, March 17, 1.05 a.m.
The Chinese Government took over the German Concession at Hankow on Friday.
The German Consul at Shanghai has been given his passport. It is understood that Admiral von Hinz, the German Minister at Peking, goes to Java.
The Chinese officials in Shanghai have been empowered to declare martial law.

[We understand that a telegram has been received in the Colony stating that the Chinese Government has also taken over the German Concession at Tientsin.]

WESTGATE RAIDED.

No Casualties; Slight Damage.

London, March 16.
The Press Bureau announces that a hostile aeroplane in the morning, at 5.30, dropped bombs on Westgate.
There no casualties and the damage done was only slight.

PLOUGHMEN TO BE RELEASED.

London, March 15.
The Press Bureau states that the Government has agreed to spare for a few weeks ploughmen engaged on munitions.

CONSCRIPTION OF WEALTH.

Labour Party's Sweeping Resolutions at Manchester.

Manchester, Jan. 25.—What the Labour Conference approved to-day may be briefly summarised in this fashion.

Resolutions in favour of—
Increased tax on unearned incomes rising to 15s. in the £.
High taxation of luxuries.
Direct taxation of land values.
Nationalisation of the banking system.
Adult Suffrage.
Increased pensions to sailors and soldiers.

A resolution in favour of immediate negotiations for peace was defeated by 1,697,000 votes to 302,000.

A resolution for the holding of an International Socialist Congress after the war was rejected by 1,498,000 votes to 696,000. It was decided to support the summoning of a conference of Allied Labour only by 1,038,000 votes to 484,000.

Mr. J. B. Macdonald, M.P., moved the Executive resolution on the question of taxation. He pointed out that at the close of the war the National Debt would be 4,000 millions, which would mean an annual expenditure of 200 millions.

Franchise reform was in the hands of Mr. W. O. Robinson, of the Spinners Union. It asked for adult personal suffrage, including arrangements for permitting sailors, soldiers, and munition workers to exercise their right as voters. Dr. Marion Phillips emphasised the claim of the women to a vote, and the resolution was adopted by acclamation.

A number of resolutions dealing with the question of pensions were boiled down into one which protested against the present scale of pensions to fighters and their dependants as totally inadequate, and pressing for a new scale. This was moved by Mr. Cramp, of the Railway Workers, and supported by Mr. Tyson Wilson, M.P.

The remainder of the morning sitting was occupied by a discussion on the International

Socialist Bureau. The Independent Labour party and other bodies had sent up resolutions on this matter, and there were also amendments and direct negatives. By arrangement, these were made into one—a resolution and an amendment. The former proposed the fullest approval of the "international solidarity of labour," and it asked for the summoning of an International Socialist Congress simultaneously with the assembling of the Peace Congress.

The amendment declared that a victory for German Imperialism would be the defeat and destruction of democracy and liberty in Europe, and confined the next Socialist and Trade Union Congress to the representatives of the Allied Powers.

On this the battle was adjourned, and it was a very lively one while it lasted. Mr. Bruce Glasier, who "moved" for the I.L.P., protested against the "misrepresentation of our German comrades," and said that Labour parties in all countries were split over the question of the war. Mr. Will Thorne, who moved the amendment, asked what sort of an International Congress it would be with the delegates from Serbia and Bulgaria in it? Mr. Clynes declared that Belgian and French Socialists were not prepared to meet invaders and despoilers of their countries. Germany declares she is the victor. "To pass this resolution," said Mr. Clynes, "would be regarded by the world as British Labour's confirmation of the German claim."

Mr. J. B. Macdonald's rising was the signal for the closure, and amid some disorder the adjournment was taken.

When the conference resumed after lunch, Mr. Ramsey Macdonald supported Mr. Bruce Glasier's resolution, and Mr. Tom Shaw (Northern Weavers) opposed it.

A card vote was taken, and it was rejected by 1,498,000 to 698,000.

A division was then taken on Mr. Will Thorne's amended resolution, which was adopted by 1,038,000 votes to 484,000.

A resolution was next moved by the British Socialist party calling upon the Government to declare its readiness to enter into immediate negotiations for peace. Captain Albert Smith, M.P. (Power Loom Overlookers) said he was one of three who volunteered to fight in order to save the voluntary system. He was the only one who could speak for the three now. He had seen what they did in Gallipoli and in Egypt. They wanted something in return for that. "If we give up now" said Captain Smith, "we should have the same militarism to fight again."

The resolution was rejected by 1,697,000 votes to 302,000.

MM. Pierre Renaudel and Jean Longuet, French Socialist Deputies, M. Louis Dubreuilh, of the French Socialist party, MM. Charles Mahman and Louis de Bruckere, of the Belgian Labour party, Mr. John Hill, M.P., and Mr. James O'Grady, M.P., all addressed the conference as fraternal delegates before the adjournment.

THE NUNS.

Winter in a Flemish Barn.

A barn stands in a field, a few yards back from the chaussee which leads to the trenches. Flemish barns are small, thin-roofed structures, through which the winter winds howl dolefully. The ground floor usually accommodates the pigs, which no peasant, however poor, is without, the poultry, and the garnerings of the field—potatoes, beans, onions, and cabbage. The loft contains the fodder which keeps the cow through the winter.

This particular barn at one time contained similar farm-stock. On grey winter mornings, when the fog plunged to the trees and spread over the stunted shrub-beries, the peasant wife would stand inside its open door threshing the beans with a great unwieldy flail. In the sty, hard by, the pigs grunted. Before the door the fowls gossiped.

In the summer the scene was much the same, except for the absence of the greyness and fog, and the increased size of the pigs and fowls. A monotonous contentment held the place until one day, when the sun blazed down on the plains and the barges on the canal basked in the heat, word came to the peasant wife that all was not with her country.

That was the beginning of the change. The barn was desolate during the early autumn months after that August day. The peasant wife was safe in France when the new occupants arrived hurriedly and settled in the cottage. And soon all the cottages round about were filled, and still new occupants arrived.

One night, when the fields lay brown beneath the harvest moon, a dozen homeless stragglers stopped before the door where the peasant wife used to flail her beans. Their journey had been long and tortuous. Through clumps of forest, over ploughed fields, across streams, and past so many rows of barges which everywhere dot the canals in Flanders, came this strange human procession, their eyes wide in wonderment at the sights which met them. They walked with difficulty, for their long black skirts trailed heavily in the sodden fields. One of them had seen 83 winters. She could not walk, and had not walked for many months. Her journey was made in a wheelbarrow, which the others in turn trundled.

This was part of a colony of nuns whose convent near Bruges had to be abandoned when the enemy marched into Belgium. Their first glimpse of the world outside their sacred walls was when their own countrymen were brought to Bruges wounded. They were obliged to pass by the convent, and many received their first dressing from the hands of the black-robed sisters. Others, too, on their way to battle, stopped at the convent walls and turned in through the gate to receive refreshment. Some four or five hundred came, every day, for weeks, and were looked after by the 18 nuns—for, although prosperous, the colony was small.

The 18 left their home together the night they started out to find a new lodging in the part of their country where the enemy had not yet penetrated. Seven became separated, and wandered aimlessly about the fields. They never reached the small corner which has been kept free from the German heel, and are now somewhere within the area from which no news comes.

These were the 12 refugees who passed before the barn door. They occupied the barn for many weary months. For a bed, they had the bare loft, with a thin layer of straw; for a coverlet, a strip of carpet from their chapel. The Government allowed each 30 centimes a day for the purchase of such food as could be purchased. It was mainly potatoes. Their neighbours were mostly refugees like themselves, and could give them but little help. But they managed to exist through the first winter months, even the old Marie, who was carried in the wheelbarrow. Those months brought more unaccustomed sights to their eyes.

At 3.30 the four Allied flags, unfurled, were carried from the building, each by a detachment of six men, who were posted exactly in front of the entrance steps opposite the Greek flag. They were followed by the four Allied Ministers, accompanied by members of the Diplomatic Corps, the French and British Admirals and their staffs, and military attaches, together with other officers. They all were in full uniform, and took up a position at the head of the entrance steps, making a picture gay with bright colours.

Immediately the whole Greek force of about 2,000 men (navy and army) rendered honours to the Allied flags by presenting arms, the massed bands playing the four national hymns. Cannon posted above the Stadium fired a salute of 21 guns, and while preparations were being made for the march past an answering salute from the Allied Fleet at Keratsini could be heard.

The defile of Greek troops was quite an imposing spectacle, and interest and importance were lent to the ceremony by the significant fact that Prince Andrew, brother of the King, led the first cavalry regiment, of which he is colonel, all the Allied representatives returning his Highness's salute.

In the big subterranean living-room of their new home the nuns told me of their experiences. They were very comfortable then, having been installed in an old chateau which had survived other wars. In one of the great rooms upstairs was a bed which is held, if not in reverence, at least in awe by the peasants all round, for the fearful Duke of Alva, when on one of his visits to the town, had slept in it. The nuns are still there, and still hear the booming of cannon, the whistle of shells, and the hideous noise of bombs. But although old Marie still shudders when the tocsin from the belfry warns that aircraft is on the wing, she does not know the fear she felt when she lay in the barn loft. She has plenty of food and a warm bed, and never ceases giving thanks to the Blessed Virgin for her deliverance from the hand of the enemy.

GREEK CEREMONIAL APOLOGY.

Allied Flags Saluted in Public.

Athens, Jan. 29.—Honour is satisfied. This afternoon another portion of the Allies' demands was carried out in the saluting of the four Allied flags by representative detachments of the Greek army and navy.

The picturesque ceremony took place on the great open space in front of the Zappeion building. Each of the four Powers landed a special detachment of 27 men, the Russians sending stalwart soldiers from Salonica, and England, France and Italy landing marines from the ships at Keratsini.

At 3.30 the four Allied flags, unfurled, were carried from the building, each by a detachment of six men, who were posted exactly in front of the entrance steps opposite the Greek flag. They were followed by the four Allied Ministers, accompanied by members of the Diplomatic Corps, the French and British Admirals and their staffs, and military attaches, together with other officers. SPEEDY JUSTICE IN JAPAN.

American Sent for Trial.

Mr. Ralph Thayer, who was arrested by the Yokohama gendarmerie on the 17th January, has been found guilty of contravention of the Military Secrets Protection Regulations by the Public Prosecutor. He has, in consequence, been ordered to stand trial before the Yokohama District Court, says an Exchango.

The finding of the Court as the result of the preliminary trial is as follows:

R. H. Thayer, 766 Elizabeth Street, Utsunomiya, New York State, the United States of America; at present teacher of the Kikyo-Dogaku (St. Paul's College), Tokyo, Age 29.

As the result of the preliminary trial into the case of the violation of the Military Secrets Protection Regulations, said to have been committed by the above-named R. H. Thayer, the preliminary court decides that the accused R. H. Thayer shall be sent for public trial at the Yokohama District Court. The reason for the decision is as follows:—

The accused R. H. Thayer, without permit of the authorities, entered the premises of the naval wireless station, built for defence purposes, at Kusugayama, in the city of Yokosuka, about 5 o'clock in the afternoon of the 17th January 1917, which fact is testified to by strong evidence. The action of the accused R. H. Thayer comes within the purview of the crimes set forth in the provisions of Arts. 4 and 5 of the Military Secrets Protection Regulations, Arts. 19 and 20 of the Regulations pertaining to the enforcement of the law of Criminal Code. Hence the accused is sent up for public trial before the Yokohama District Court in accordance with the Regulations of Clause 1, Art. 167 of the Criminal Procedure Law.

Alleged Terrible Cruelty

A Chinese woman, living in Upper Rafter Street, was charged before Mr. O.D. Melbourne at the Police Court this morning with cruelty to a little slave girl. According to the evidence, the defendant was so increased at a slight offence committed by the girl, over whom she had no control, that she conceived the diabolical idea of punishing her by burning her. First she burnt the child's face with matches, beat her on the affected part with her fists, and, not content with this, burnt the lower part of the girl's body, also with matches. The child was so badly injured that she had to be taken to the Government Civil Hospital, where she now lies very ill. On the application of Inspector Davitt, the case was adjourned.

GENERAL NEWS.

No Cinema Censorship.
The Home Secretary has decided to abandon for the present the proposal for establishing a central censorship of films. The proposal was put forward by Mr. Herbert Samuel while Home Secretary, owing to representations as to the marked increase of juvenile delinquency. After correspondence the licensing authorities accepted the scheme, but the consent of the trade has not been obtained, and in these circumstances, Sir George Cave has decided that the scheme must remain in abeyance. Meanwhile the licensing authorities are asked to exercise the powers vested in them by the Cinematograph Act, 1909 to check the exhibition of objectionable films.

Dr. Sun Yat-sen, Banker.
Local financial circles will surely be interested in the following which appears from a recent issue of the Japan Advertiser, Tokyo, which that paper translated from the Kokumin, an influential Tokyo daily:—Dr. Sun Yat-sen, revolutionary leader in China, is planning to establish a bank in Shanghai with a capital of ¥3,000,000. It will be a joint undertaking between Dr. Sun and Mr. Kuhara, proprietor of Kuhara and Co., one of the biggest mining interests in Japan. Dr. Sun will invest Yen. 2,500,000, which the Peking Government is to pay him as compensation for sums which Sun and his fellow revolutionists spent in the last revolution against the late President Yuan, and the remaining half million yen will be invested by Mr. Kuhara. The new bank will have its head office at Shanghai and branches elsewhere in China and Japan.

A Timely Leaflet.
The Shanghai British Chamber of Commerce is issuing, in English and Chinese, the following timely leaflet, headed "British Shipping."—Whereas the Germans in China have spread reports that owing to their submarines there will be no allied ships bringing cargo to China from Europe, and it is possible that such malicious lies may obtain credence among Chinese merchants who, acting on their belief, that further supplies will not come from the Allies may thus be involved in ruinous speculation, it is desirable to warn Chinese business men, that there is no probability whatever of any serious stoppage of Allied imports into Chinese ports. His Majesty's Government, knowing the many devices of our enemies, publishes each week the numbers of vessels entered and cleared at ports in Great Britain together with the numbers sunk by submarines and those lost are telegraphed by Reuter for public information. Then follow the records for the week ending February 25, in themselves an effective answer to German mendacity.

Burma Priest's Death.
Rangoon Feb. 24.—His Lordship Bishop Cardot has received news by cable from Paris of the death of one of the French missionary priests, Father Bernard, and the information will be learnt with regret by the many friends he had made while at work in Rangoon and Bassein. The Rev. Father Joseph Bernard was born at Verres (Savoie) France, on the August 6, 1850. After his classical studies he joined the College of Foreign Missions in Paris, where he was ordained priest on February 28, 1885. He was sent to Southern Burma, and worked in the Mission, first at St. Anthony's, Rangoon, and later in the Bassein District. He was Father D'Ora's assistant during the declining years of the veteran priest and at his death, in 1903, he succeeded him at Ywe. In 1913, ill health compelled Father Bernard to go to France, but neither the change nor the best medical treatment proved efficacious. He remained ill and died without having had the consolation of seeing Burma again.

GENERAL NEWS.

Naval Headquarters in Shanghai. Admiral Tiao Chia-hsiang, the Vice Minister of the Navy, is now in Shanghai. He is staying in the Naval Engineers' Office. After discussing plans with the naval officers in Shanghai, he has submitted a memorandum to the Government regarding the measures which should be adopted. He has established a Naval Office in Shanghai which is to take charge of naval defence matters. He recommends the revival of the Naval Headquarters in Shanghai, and when instructions from Peking are received, he will proceed to their organization. — Peking Daily News.

The Chinese Mission to Japan. All preparations have been made for the reception of Wang Ta-hsieh. He will be treated with the honors due to an Ambassador: he will be the guest of the Emperor during his stay and will be housed in a detached palace, and most elaborate entertainments are being arranged in his honor. The Emperor returns from his seaside palace at Haya-ma on the 12th for the purpose of receiving Wang Ta-hsieh and will receive him in audience and give a banquet in his honor on the day following his arrival.

Second Engineer's Bravery. Mr. George Thresher, second engineer of the Newcastle steamer Westward, who is a resident of Southampton, has been presented at the Mercantile Marine Office, Newcastle, with the Royal Humane Society's certificate on vellum for his gallant attempt to save from drowning a shipmate who accidentally fell out of the ship's dinghy at Osea, on August 20th. He jumped in and dived several times, ultimately succeeding in getting hold of the man. He had to let go on account of the latter's struggles. He himself was brought to shore insensible, and nearly lost his life.

Fukien Ports. In reply to the circular telegram sent by the Central Government to the seven coast provinces, instructing the Tachuns there to institute careful investigations on the condition of the fortifications of their coasts, the Tachun of Fukien has sent a telegram to the Ministry of the Navy stating that the important points of his province are at Chusan, Shaoan, Hatten, Santos and Fating, and that as soon as reports are received from the investigators and surveyors sent to these six districts, a detailed statement will be submitted.

Theebaw's Daughter. Rangoon, February 20.—The marriage took place to-day of Princess Thi Sapayalat, second daughter of the late ex-King Theebaw, with Kin Maung Luit, son of Mya U Kura Min, grandson of the Twingda Mingyi, at the Collector's Bungalow. Owing to the recent bereavement, the ceremony was performed quietly. Lord and Lady Willingdon reported their inability to attend, and sent a brooch with jewels. The Collector proposed the health of the bride and bridegroom, and the latter replied. The elite of the town were present. They leave for Calcutta soon, where they will stay some time before returning to Burma. Saluting volleys were fired by fifty Military Police.

U.S. Ambassador's Death. Tokyo, March 9.—Mr. George W. Gathrie, the Ambassador of the United States to Japan, has died here as the result of a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Gathrie was a lawyer, and was born at Pittsburgh on September 5, 1848. He was President Wilson's nominee to the post of Ambassador at Tokyo, and it is generally understood throughout the east that his tenure of office had won him the sincere regard of the Japanese court and officials. It was in 1889 that Mr. Gathrie was admitted to the Pittsburgh bar, and he continued to practice in that city in all the years that followed. He took a prominent part in local politics, and was one of the leaders of the democratic party in that region. In 1908 he was elected mayor of Pittsburgh.

HONGKONG, SATURDAY, MARCH 17, 1917.

CINEMATOGRAPH AND CENSORSHIP.

As mentioned in another column of to-day's issue, the Home Secretary has decided temporarily to abandon the establishment of a central censorship for cinematograph films, though local authorities still possess the powers conferred on them by the Act of 1909. No one will want to quarrel with the Home Secretary over this, for just now we have a war on hand, and all the energies of the Ministry and of the general public are required to deal with it. But we are not going to be at war forever, and when things have drifted back to normal we earnestly hope that the question of film censorship will be taken up very seriously. For not only has the cinematograph
"come to stay" but its power is going to increase a thousandfold;
in fact it is only as yet in its babyhood; and the longer it is with us the more deeply will it stamp its impress on the public mind, both juvenile and adult.

As matters stand at present, it may be said that the good and the not-good in cinematography are evenly balanced, and that the one negates the other. To day is not, however, a fair time for judging of film productions, for the two countries which hitherto have produced the finest work in this respect—France and Italy—are at war, and their leading artists and producers have other matters to think about than their former calling; while many of the Scandinavian firms are not on the White List. Thus cinematograph houses, in the main, are dependent on films from America, a country which, up to the present, has been less successful than any,
except perhaps Britain, in producing moving pictures of a good class. But with the restoration of peace we may look to find a very different state of things prevailing, and it may be that a large percentage of the rubbish which now finds a place on the screen will be relegated to the dustbin. Much, however, that is undesirable will still survive, and even here the effect of the forced inaction of the better class of artists and playwrights does not end; for the public taste has been steadily depraved by reason of the ascendancy of the American producers, and it will be some time before it can be diverted into a healthier channel. America has given us four classes of films: the impossible and sickeningly vulgar, as exemplified
in the Chaplin pictures; the sentimentally didactic; the morbidly sensational; and a class that would fain be romantic or historical,
but is usually ludicrous through the obvious ignorance either of the author or of the producer. British picture-theatre patrons have been fed on this diet for over two years, and the result is that it will require no small effort to bring them back to what is wholesome.

When the Imperial and local governments are again free to turn their attention away from war matters it will be their duty to help
the public to find its way back to the rational and the decent, in this regard; and such a task will be best achieved by the appointment of representative tribunals in the large centres at home and in each colony. The colonies naturally require a somewhat specialised treatment on account of their very mixed populations. Taking Hongkong as an example, instead of the censorship's being left to an already over-worked Government official, it should undoubtedly be in the hands of a considerable body of men who will represent all sections of the community. In this Colony we have seen literally dozens of pictures screened which, in view of the class of spectators, never ought to have been shown here at all. There is no need for particularism, for everyone here, at one time or another,
has heard expressions of disapproval or disgust from persons present in the theatre: "Fancy allowing that to be shown to the Chinese!"
and so forth. A competent committee of, say, twenty men of decent education, experience of the world and breadth of mind would put a stop to most, if not all, of this, and the cinematograph might soon become a real power for good.

Enemy Trade Marks.

Special interest and importance
centre in the Bill further amending the Alien Enemies (Winding-up) Ordinance, which was read a first time at Thursday's meeting
of the Legislative Council, from the fact that it contains an indication of the Government's policy
in the matter of enemy trade marks. During the course of the liquidations, certain of these marks, the period of registration
for which has expired, have been renewed. At the same time they have been placed under Government control. Very soon, however,
the liquidators will no longer be concerned with enemy concerns,
for the work which they have been called upon to discharge is nearing completion. It has thus become necessary that steps should be taken to retain the trade marks under Government control, and it has been decided to vet the marks, together with the goodwill of the trades in which they were used, in the Custodian of Enemy
Property. The Bill, however,
goes a step further than that, inasmuch as no mark can be removed from the register for non-payment of renewal fees, except by order of the Governor, while such marks as have already been removed on this ground are to be restored. That, in brief, is to be the policy of the Government.

Satisfactory if Temporary.

These provisions, we presume,
have been incorporated in the
amending Ordinance in accordance with instructions received from the Imperial Government. They mean that all enemy
trade marks are to be kept alive
until, we suppose, the war
ends, when the whole question
of dealing with enemy trade
interests will be disposed of.
In the interim they cannot be used or imitated. The final decision on these matters will, it seems fairly clear, lie with the Home Government. So far as the trade marks are concerned,
this method of dealing with
the matter does not go so far as the policy advocated by the Hon. Mr. Holyoak some time ago on behalf of the mercantile community of the Colony, and unanimously
supported by the rest of the Unofficial Members of the Council.
That policy was one of absolute expurgation. But, on the principle that half a loaf is better than no bread, the method
now proposed is likely to meet with the approval
of the business community, so long as it is understood that this is a purely temporary expedient,
and that opportunity will be given, before the final step is taken, of securing that the views
of Hongkong's men of commerce
shall be conveyed to the proper quarter. That is a point upon which it would be well to receive some definite assurance when the Bill comes up for second reading.

Action Needed Now.

Problems of this order are bound to arise for consideration
at the forthcoming Imperial War Conference, upon which the Crown Colonies are to be represented by the Secretary of State,
who has already enquired
whether there are any special circumstances here which need to be taken into account.
There can, of course, be only one answer to the enquiry—the affirmative. And we hope, if it has not already done so, that the Hongkong Chamber of Commerce
will leave no stone unturned in its efforts to see that, in view of the peculiar local conditions,
its advice and opinions are not overlooked. It is at any rate essential that measures be taken to prevent these trade marks from ever again falling into enemy possession, and so to be used in a campaign against British interests. The Imperial Conference will soon be meeting. Hence the urgency of the question and the necessity for the taking of definite action without any further delay.

has been pleased to appoint Mrs.

University Appointment.

His Excellency the Governor has been pleased to nominate
Mr. Ho Kwong to be a Member of the Court of the University of Hongkong for a term of three years, with effect from March 18, 1917, vice Mr. Ho Fook, who has become a Life Member of the said Court.

The Kowloon Latrine.

It is notified that the Government proposes to erect a public latrine at the west end of Salisbury Road, Kowloon, and adjacent to the rickshah stand. If any owner or occupier in the immediate vicinity of such site
objects to the erection, the objection must be sent in writing to the Colonial Secretary so as to reach his office not later than Friday, April 6. The latrine will be constructed on the water-
carriage system.

Church Missionary Association.

We have received a copy of the statement of receipts and expenditure of the Hongkong
Church Missionary Association
from January 1, 1916, to January 31, 1917. The period started with a balance of $70, and ended with $3.69 in hand. The receipts, including the $70
brought forward, totalled
$2,020.28. Of the expenditure,
$1,460 was disposed of in grants
and $462.08 in special donations
to various institutions.

The University Statutes.

The statutes of the University of Hongkong have been amended
as follows:—Statute 7 (3) is repealed and the following substituted therefor: "A member of the Senate elected by the Senate
as a member of the Council as provided by class 3 shall hold office for two years." Statute 22 is amended by the deletion of the words "A subscriber of $100,000
will in addition be made a life
member of the Court," in the thirteenth and fourteenth lines
and by the substitution therefor
of the following: "A subscriber
of more than $50,000 will in addition be made a life member of the Court."

Victoria Theatre.

Last night there was a big
house at the Victoria Theatre,
the occasion being the first showing of the really beautiful film:
"Salambo." To do justice to this great French novel on the cinematograph stage is no easy matter, but the version offered
last night was, in point of acting
and of production, as near perfect
as it could be. Those who know the story will perceive that Flanery's original has been very closely adhered to. The film is one which everyone should go to see, and we feel sure that the Hongkong public would keenly appreciate the more frequent
showing of films of this class.

The Dollar.

March 17.—"The rate of the

A Characteristic Comment.

March 11.—"It will be admitted without discussion that the Government of this colony is a very powerfully-organized bureaucracy, with the Governor
as a nominal head. Each department is independent, and ruled over by a chief whose
powers are practically autocratic.
Sir John Pope Hennessy temporarily checked this system and insisted on personally directing
the working and bearing the responsibilities of the several public departments; but after his departure things were allowed to drift back into the old groove, and successive
governors and administrators
during the past ten years have been mere mouthpieces of their subordinates. The results of the change have not been encouraging so far as the interests of the community are concerned, as is very clearly evidenced by the lengthy chapter of gross
misgovernment, ridiculous legislation, and scandalous extravagance in dealing with public money which is open to inspection in the archives of the Government and the columns of his daily newspapers. No doubt it would be unjust to say that all the responsible officers of the Hongkong Government are idlers, incapables, or fools; but it is equally certain that a very large majority of them can fairly and honestly be classified under one of these three heads, and the truth of that assertion is all but universally recognized. The Government Grants-in-aid to our local schools
for the past year amounted to something like $22,000, and on the 19th of February, Dr. E. J.
Eitel, the Inspector of Schools,
sent in detailed accounts and
statements to the Audit Office.
It appears that the routine is for the Audit Office to forward the accounts to the Colonial Secretary's department, then they are laid before the Governor for signature, and afterwards returned to the Treasury for payment.
In any properly conducted commercial establishment, all of this would have been carried through in the course of a few hours, but the Tite Bureaucracy
of the Government offices are not
business men, and their functions,
if we may judge from their
actions and parrot-like chatter,
are mostly of an ornamented
character. At all events, a week passed and there was no sign of the Grant-in-aid accounts; the week became a fortnight, the fortnight a month—and then the patience of the persons to whom
the money was due became exhausted, and complaints were made, which led to official inquiries. But Dr. Eitel's report and statement of accounts has as completely vanished as did friend
Jonah when he became an inside
passenger to the ever-to-be-remembered whale of biblical tradition. The Auditor had done his duty, promptly forwarding the documents to the Colonial Secretary, and then they disappeared—
whether lost, or pigeon-holed,
or something else, is a matter of uncertainty—but they disappeared
and left no trace behind."

Education in Hongkong.

March 14.—The education of the rising generation in Hongkong is under the control of a department
nominally presided over by Dr.
E. J. Eitel, and comprising, in addition to the English staff,
thirty-three Chinese teachers.
Under this Board there are two large Government schools, where English and Chinese education
is administered in alternate doses
by a large staff, the majority being Chinese. There are also several schools connected with religious institutions—St.
Joseph's College, which is in English but Portuguese; St.
Paul's College, Bishop Gordon's
own pet failure, which is now
defunct, or at least in a state of decay; Victoria British School, a really good and well-
named school that is doing admirable work; the Diocesan Home and Orphanage, half English and half Chinese instruction;
the Baxter Girls' School, a small

MUSIC AND WOMEN.

Justice Darling's Salles on Tolage German.

There were some lively passages in a libel action, before Mr.
Justice Darling brought by Mr.
Maximilian Lindlar, a naturalised
Englishman, against the PIANO-MAKER.

Mr. Lindlar, who was born in Germany, claimed damages
against Mr. Herbert Sinclair,
editor of the Journal, and Messrs.
King and Jarrett, Limited, the printers, for statements arising out of a campaign carried on by Mr.
Sinclair against Germans in the British piano trade.

Mr. Tindal Atkinson, K.C., said
plaintiff had lived in this country
for 40 years, and was a freeman
of the City of London. Up till 1912 he was in service of Mr.
Bechstein. Counsel complained of an article in the "Pianomaker,"
in which reference was made to
"Max Lindlar, a prominent director of the German Club,"
and which said:—

In 1904 he (meaning plaintiff)
made the following remarks
against British piano makers:
"It is a national impossibility for an Englishman to produce a piano
with each note perfectly balanced in tone. He has no true ear.
His piano sounds all right to him;
he does not know."

Mr. Lindlar gave evidence that the statements with regard to him
in the defendant's paper were absolutely untrue. In cross-examination he declared that all his interests were now in this country,
his home, friends and property.
He had come to love his friends
here.

Mr. Justice Darling:—Has
England become your spiritual home? (Laughter.)—Yes.

Mr. Wild, K.C. (for defendant):—It is strange that you should marry a German woman?

—Accidents and love are blind.
(Laughter.)

Counsel asked plaintiff if he would like to destroy German interests in the piano trade.

His Lordship:—Did he mean
to destroy German music as well?

Some of it is very penetrating.
(Laughter.)

Mr. Wild:—If you mean
German bands, my lord, I agree.
(Laughter.)

Counsel read a letter from Mr.
Bechstein to the plaintiff complaining that Mr. Lindlar had allowed himself to be interviewed
by a woman journalist. The letter ran:—

"Grosland in 'Lovely Woman'
says the same as I have held for years. Women are intellectually inferior."

His Lordship: That is what
Bismarck said in very rude terms.
(Laughter.)

Counsel read on:—"and possibly in consequence all possible
faults and mental defects which
one cannot prosecute in a court
of law."

His Lordship:—I suppose he means if you prosecute she would get off on the ground of insanity.
(Laughter.)

Mr. Wild (to the plaintiff):—
Do you share that view of women?

—No, I am in idealism.

Mr. Wild:—Not a German philosopher?—There is a lot in some German philosophers.

His Lordship:—There is, indeed!

Mr. Wild:—Did you say to a Mr. Ferdinand, speaking about the war:—"What could England
do with her little Army?"

His Lordship:—Was that before the war?—Yes.

His Lordship:—The Kaiser
must have overheard him.
(Laughter.)

The hearing was adjourned.

semi-private seminary; and the Wesleyan School, entirely Chinese. At all of these institutions, except the Government English School, a hybrid, Solecist kind of "English"
is taught, and in such a perfunctory manner that almost
as soon as the pupils
leave school they revert entirely
to their native Chinese or the Macao dialect as their language
of daily use, and when required
to attempt English they can only speak with difficulty a ridiculous
and uncouth jargon. Even the few English children who attend
most of the schools in this colony
grow up lamentably ignorant of their own language and literature; in speech, and more seriously in manner, an English
gentleman of a Hongkong school resembled a half-breed.

TO-DAY'S MISCELLANY.

In promising to preach at the City Temple in March the Dean of Durham is taking an unprecedented step, says the Chronicle.
Hitherto no Anglican dignitary
has ever preached at a regular Sunday service in any leading Nonconformist church in this country. The late Dr. Parker
made several attempts at intervals
to arrange for well known elege-
men of the Church of England
to preach from the City Temple
pulpit at the Thursday morning
service, but although the invitation was accepted more than once
the consummation so devoutly wished for was never realized. It is to be hoped Dean Hanson's broad-mindedness will result in a happier state of things in the present instance.

The proposal of the Borough
that men granted exemption from military service should be called upon to pay a special tax is one that is already in force in Portugal, where any man not called up under the system of conscription pays a heavy tax. It is practically the same principle as
was adopted under the feudal system in these islands. Every knight was liable to render twenty
or forty days' service each year,
but as this led to a very unsatisfactory and erratic army, Henry I.
introduced a system ofutage,
by which a knight could pay a
tax instead of rendering service.
With the money thus obtained
the King was able to engage a much more reliable mercenary army. Henry II. more firmly established the practice till by 1184 it was far more usual for a man to pay the tax than to render service.

If an American answer were required to President Wilson's peace scheme, a famous oration delivered by Patrick Henry at the first American Congress at Philadelphia in 1774 should suffice, says the Chronicle. The following closing words give the tenor of the whole. "Gentlemen
may cry peace. But there is no peace. Our brothers are already in the field. Why stand we here to-day? What is it that gentlemen wish? What would they have? Is life or truth or peace so sweet as to be purchased at the price of chains and slavery? Forbid it, Almighty God. I know not what course
others may take; but as for me,
give me liberty or give me death!"
That was when America was declaring her independence.

That painstaking person who estimated the number of treaties
that had been made in the last 34 centuries and the average period of their duration might have added some still more interesting figures relating to international disputes. From the year 1496 B.C. 1861 A.D., a period of 3,358 years, there were 227 years
of peace and 3,130 years of war,
or 15 years of war to every peaceful year. Within the last three centuries there have been no
fewer than 236 wars in Europe.
The expenditure of war provides figures quite as striking. Apart from the money spent on the present conflict, Europe has spent, since 1648, a sum of $16, 000,000,000, and within the entire historic period war must have involved an expenditure of at least $160,000,000,000. This represents, approximately, 4, 000,000,000 days of work.

In the nature of things, because it is generally bestowed upon
men who are full of years and other honours, the ranks of the Order of Merit are more rapidly depleted than those of perhaps any supreme distinction. In the last few years death has claimed
Lord Roberts, Lord Wolseley,
Lord Kitchener, Sir George
White, Lord Lansdowne, Sir
John Lubbock, Sir John Lubbock,
Sir John Lubbock, and now Lord
Osmont. Of those who survive
only five were born after 1850,
including the "war" additions of Viscount French and Sir John Jellicoe. The dozen of the order is Sir William Croft, who celebrates the thirty-fifth anniversary of his birth-day this year, while others who have either passed or are verging on four-
score include Sir Arthur Colclough,
Lord Bryce, Mr. Thomas Hardy,
Sir George Trevelyan, Professor
Henry Jackson, and Admiral Sir
Edward Grey.

"THE POLICE RESERVE GAZETTE."

A Very Remarkable Twenty Cents' Worth.

If anyone who buys the new number of the Police Reserve Gazette is not satisfied with it, we feel tolerably sure that the corps will vote, non con, that his twenty cents be given back to him. To say that the magazine preserves its standard of excellence is not sufficient, for every number that appears is unquestionably an improvement on its predecessor. The present issue contains, on the more serious side, some practical editorial notes, an appreciation of Mr. Ua Kien-wa—one of the corps benefactors—a very sympathetically-written biographical note on the late Inspector Hewitt, H.K.P.R., and a lot of interesting matter concerning Police Reserve activities. The rest is in very light vein indeed and includes among other things, a very clever and most welcome cartoon by Lieut. Millington, B.G.A. "Aunt Dorothy's Page" is even better than that lady's previous performance; in fact is as funny as it can be. So too are most of the bogus advertisements while additional amusement is afforded to those who know the characters mentioned by a lengthy skit on American newspaper work. E. W. H. contributes a good set of verses "A Spring Song", and there is another poetical effort: "Our C. I.", which is decidedly ingenious. "Unravelling Headquarters Financial Tangle" is very happily done; so are "Letters from a Japanese," a letter from A.L. Unatic, "A Canton Ghost Story" and the Answers to Correspondents.

A new feature which deserves special mention is the Limerick Competition. Books to the value of $10 are offered for the best line to the following:—
When Binks joined the H.K.P.R.
He thought 'twould be better by far

Then donning the khaki
When evenings are parky
Judges not connected with the Corps will be appointed, there is no entrance fee, and the competition is open to the general public.

AN INDIAN CHARGED.

Is it a Case of Blackmail?

Before Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Police Court this morning, Ka Rim Din, who is an Indian Police Reservist, was charged with converting to his own use two sums of money—$1,750 and $500—entrusted to him to pay to the Ho Mun Housing Syndicate on behalf of a Chinese woman named Lai Tai, complainant in the case, who lives at 15, Arbuthnot Road. The conversion of the money is alleged to have taken place on July 17, 1914.

By the order of his Worship, defendant was placed in the dock, his Worship saying there had been the greatest difficulty in getting hold of the man. The police had tried numerous times to serve him with a summons.

Mr. G. R. Haywood, who appeared for the defence, said if he had been asked for the man he could have got hold of him at any time. There was a complete answer to the charge; it was a blackmailing case, as usual. The matter was nearly completed when Mr. Otto Kong Sing died. His client surrendered as soon as he knew there was a warrant out for his arrest.

Mr. E. Davidson, appearing for the prosecution, said it was not true that the defendant voluntarily surrendered. Sergeant Clarke said defendant was arrested in the Police compound, where he had been for fully three-quarters of an hour drilling with the Police Reserve. The case was adjourned for a week, bail being fixed in the sum of $500.

A FOOTBALL MATTER.

[To the Editor of the "Hongkong Telegraph."]

Sir,—What on earth is "Sport's" idea in writing to the Telegraph in regard to a forthcoming football match? Are there not officials appointed to deal with these matters? If "Sport" is so interested in the welfare of the game could he not get in touch with the Football Authorities—or take the game himself?

What "mob" is he referring to—the players, or sportsmen of his kidney? If trouble is expected (and he evidently is trying to stir some up), why not address his remarks to the Police?

REGISTRATION OF PARTNERSHIPS.

Sir,—I hear that a recent Act of Parliament stipulates that all firms in the United Kingdom must state their principals' names in future. This is to guard against alien enemies trading as British. That being the case, I would suggest that if the local authorities would introduce this Act into this Colony, it would not only protect Chinese business generally, but it would save a lot of trouble in the Bankruptcy Court to prove who is a partner in a bankrupt firm. Chinese firms, as far as I understand, use two or three characters as the firm's or company's name; and the partners therein use the "long" name, the "pit ts" or marriage name, or their female name instead of their own. The signatures relating to their names are thus very difficult to prove. In Chinese businesses, so far as I can see, there is not any partnership agreement signed by all the partners. I know that some time ago one of the local European Banks duly registered the partners of a firm which is doing business with it, and I think the best way to protect business interests here would be to have the registration of Partnerships Act apply to this Colony in every case.

Yours etc.,

MERCHANT.

HONGKONG AND SHIPBUILDING.

Interesting Speech at Meeting of Engineers' Institute.

There was a good attendance at the annual meeting of the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders which was held at the Institute last evening. Mr. K. E. Greig presided.

In moving the adoption of the annual report and statement of accounts, the Chairman said that the balance sheet was very satisfactory and they had made considerable progress, the Institute being in a very sound financial position at the present time. He did not know that it was very grand, but it showed considerable progress on the last two or three years, during which they were not so fortunate. A great saving had been effected through not having a European Secretary, and the work had been very satisfactorily performed by the honorary officials.

The following were the officers elected for the ensuing year:—
President, Mr. J. MacDonald, proposed by Mr. K. E. Greig, seconded by Mr. B. L. Frost.

Vice Presidents, Mr. W. Budge and Mr. J. Elliott, proposed by Mr. J. McCubbin, seconded by Mr. A. Davidson.

Hon. Treasurer, Mr. A. Stalker, proposed by Mr. B. L. Frost, seconded by Mr. W. Budge.

Hon. Secretary, Mr. S. Baker, proposed by Mr. K. E. Greig, seconded by Mr. Gordon.

Hon. Librarian, Mr. J. Elliott, proposed by Mr. Ormiston, seconded by Mr. R. Hunter.

Committee:—Messrs. Greig, Budge, McCubbin, Davidson, Graham, Harman, Frost, and Hunter.

Mr. Gordon proposed a vote of thanks to the retiring President. He said that Mr. Greig's services to the Institute had been very valuable. Mr. Greig had been a great force in the Institution, and they were greatly indebted to him.

The vote was seconded by Mr. Richardson and carried unanimously.

All the outgoing officials were thanked for their services.

In the course of an interesting speech, the Chairman spoke of the services rendered by Mr. Elliott in connection with the technical side of the Institution. In speaking of the papers which had been read, he said that the attendance had been very disappointing, and, in fact, almost amounted to a disaster. He hoped members would co-operate more in this matter. The past year had been a notable one, as membership had increased and their profits were considerable. He advocated placing the Institute on a sound financial basis, with good investments to give a fixed income. He hoped in time they might have an Institute of their own. Referring to the future of Hongkong as a shipbuilding and engineering port, the Chairman said they had recently been very busy. A large number of vessels, all for their own Government, were under construction in the local yards, including also large ocean going steamers. He was sure these boats were the forerunners of many others. With regard to this Hongkong was quite capable of turning out anything in ships or mercantile engines which might be required or necessary for commerce. It was up to them in Hongkong to produce absolutely the best, to give their best attention to it and turn out such work, remembering it would have to go to Europe to be viewed by prominent engineers and shipbuilders. They would have to put their shoulders to the wheel out here and turn out work which would bring tremendous shipbuilding work to this port. (Hear, Hear). In this war-torn world had been repeated and he thought he was right in saying that they should give their best attention to the expedition of work and to proper supervision of Chinese workmen. It only required energy and thoroughness, and if this were done he was quite sure that inside the next ten years they would find that Hongkong would be the most prominent place for shipbuilding.

CANTON WAR INVESTMENT.

Good Response to Recent Scheme.

The Committee of the Canton War Investments Association announces that the number of units taken up to date is 444. Each unit represents $100.00 Straits Settlements 6 per cent. War Loan Bonds i.e. a total sum of $44,400 (Straits dollars). Of this sum $15,100 was taken up in full in one payment by 20 subscribers; $29,300 was taken up under the Association's instalment scheme of four monthly payments, by 33 subscribers. The cost of each $100 Bond under the instalment plan will be approximately $101.60.

The Committee desire to express their thanks to the Press for kindly publishing the notices issued by the Association, and also to all those who have been good enough to aid their efforts in making the scheme known and obtaining subscriptions for same.

The Bijou Theatre: The Bijou Theatre has a most attractive week-end programme. In addition to the serial, there is a war graphic depicting the landing of the survivors of the Lusitania, etc., the recruiting scenes witnessed subsequently, and several comic pictures.

in the British colonies. They were ahead of some places; but it was up to them to forge ahead and do better still. The Institute could do a great deal towards that. It existed to bring engineers and shipbuilders together for discussion and general interchange of views. They in Hongkong suffered very little from the terrible war which was going on and he therefore proposed that they give the sum of $500 to the St. Dunstan's Fund out of their income, through the local War Charities Committee.

Mr. Reid seconded the motion, which was carried unanimously. The Chairman announced that a number of their members were indirectly taking part in the war by service in the mercantile marine, while others had been before the Commission and had attested. He thought they should place their names on record. Mr. Rotson had been killed and Mr. Bradfield was still taking an active part. Those who had attested were Messrs. Dickie, Chubb, Smith and C. Summers. He wished them well, and considered it an honour for the Institute to have such members. If at any other time men were wanted and facilities were given he was sure the Institute would not be lacking representation.

The Chairman mentioned that the committee had at their disposal two medals presented by Mr. Gordon and by Mr. Jack.

The cup won by Mr. Brown in the recent billiard tournament was handed, in his absence, to Mr. Stalker, and Mr. McCubbin received a silver photo frame for making the highest break.

The meeting closed with a vote of thanks to the Chairman.

We have been asked to state that the first prize for the next billiard tournament will be presented by Mr. Reid, of Taikee Dockyard.

SHIPPING NEWS.

Engine that Works Wonders.
The Kawasaki Dockyard Co., Kobe, procured a share of the patent right to an electric engine of a Norwegian system, which has given incomparable results in the United States, and is fitting it up in a stock boat of 9,000 tons class now under construction. By the use of this engine, the bulk of the engine can be reduced by half with an increase in horsepower and speed, and a saving in fuel by about 1 per cent.

The Education of Engineers.
The Committee appointed by the Council of the Manchester Association of Engineers to consider the question of the education of engineers have just issued their report. They recommend (1) that employers should insist upon a boy reaching a satisfactory standard of education before becoming an apprentice; (2) that all engineering apprentices should be given an opportunity to attend a school for two half-days per week from the beginning of their apprenticeship to the age of seventeen; and (3) that at the age of seventeen the half-day schooling must in most cases cease and the youths be encouraged by their employers to attend evening technical classes two or three nights per week.

Young P. & O. Stewards.
It was recommended by the City Tribunal that 11 of the 35 stewards, including cooks, on a certain P. & O. liner should be taken for the Army. It was reported that the eleven were all single and of ages ranging from 19 to 23. The P. & O. was not represented, but Mr. James (the Clerk) said they felt that sufficient consideration was given to the smallness of their European staff. He added that the Advisory Committee, military representative, and shipping adviser were strongly of opinion that these young men could be replaced and should come out of the ship. The whole 35 were European. The Chairman observed: "We support the suggestion of the Advisory Committee that all these men should serve."

British Coal Shipments.
The official returns relating to the quantity of coal exported from Great Britain during 1916 have just been issued by the Statistical Office, London. The total quantity exported amounted to 38,351,551 tons, as compared with 43,534,560 tons in 1915, a decrease of 5,183,007 tons. The shipments on Admiralty account for the use of the Allied fleets are not contained in these returns. The heaviest falling off was shown by the Humber ports, only 1,849,533 tons being cleared as against 3,791,392 tons in 1915. From the Bristol Channel district 17,417,707 tons were shipped, as compared with 18,601,816 tons, although France received about a million tons more than in 1915. To Italy 2,720,614 tons were shipped down from the Bristol Channel, as compared with 3,166,916 tons in 1915. A feature of the returns is the decline in shipments to South America. South Wales is the chief source of supply, and the clearances to the Argentine, Brazil, and Uruguay fell off to a sharp extent.

Ships' Liquors.
Says the "Singapore Free Press" of March 7:—On Monday afternoon before the District Civil Judge, a case was heard of interest to the masters of local ships. It was a claim brought by Messrs. Calbeck, Macgregor and Co. against Captain Wilson, of the Lady Weld, in respect of liquors supplied to the ship's steward. Mr. Dickinson appeared for the plaintiff and Mr. V. D. Knowles for the defendant. The plaintiff alleged that by signing a printed application to the Monopolies Department for a permit for Messrs. Calbeck, Macgregor and Co. to supply liquors for the ship's use, the Captain had made himself liable to pay for such goods. On behalf of the defendant it was proved that on his appointment as Master of the Lady Weld, Captain Wilson had arranged with the steward that all food and liquors should be supplied by the steward, and on the latter leaving the ship in November last the Captain had purchased the balance of the stock in hand. It was admitted that the Captain had not personally ordered the goods in question, nor made any representation himself to the plaintiff that he would pay for goods ordered by the steward. It was contended on behalf of the defence that the application for the permit was not presented to the plaintiffs but that the Master would be responsible for the price, and that even if the goods were not necessary, they were not liable for them in the port where the ship was registered and that the goods were not supplied to the ship.

RUSSIA'S UPHEAVAL.

STREET FIGHTS AND RIOTING.

ABDICATION OF THE TSAR.

London, March 15.

After an ominous silence, news is at last arriving from Russia, describing the stirring events in the capital.

Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd, writing on March 13, says that he has been day and night in the streets during the last three days, and has seen long queues of hungry men, women and children outside the bakers' shops. He has seen the wanton firing of rifles and machine guns, has seen civil war in the main thoroughfares, yet has not heard a single word against the war.

The shortage of food, the lack of organisation, and the neglect to take the most elementary precautions, is popularly ascribed to German influences. There is a patriotic determination to exterminate these influences, fired by the recent killing of the Court Monk, Rasputin. The conflagration burst on March 12, and Reuter hears that the purpose is achieved.

The regiments declared for the Duma and the people, and the naval barracks were opened to enable sailors to participate.

Describing the scenes in the streets, the correspondent says the troops were ordered to use their rifles and machine guns. There were only a few cartridges in their belts and machine guns, but the crowds were so dense that many fell. The riflemen either had a large number of blank cartridges or they were shooting intentionally badly. The garden in front of the Cathedral was packed with the populace, when a large force of Cossacks came up. All the people thereupon knelt and the Cossacks did not fire.

The people were particularly resentful against the Police, because several of them were employed on March 11 to fire into the crowd, in consequence of a refusal of many of the soldiers to do so. Several police, including a high official, were shot later.

Several Guards regiments, numbering twenty-five thousand, men, joined the people with arms. Some of their officers were shot. Another Guards regiment refused to fire on the arsenal and artillery headquarters, from which the commandant was taken and killed.

The British military attaché who was there at the time was escorted towards his embassy by a guard from the fortress of Peter and Paul, and also entered the headquarters of the revolutionary forces.

Members of the Duma, assembling on March 5, found an Imperial rescript suspending the session till April. Thereupon a party of leaders decided not to disperse. A historic sitting was held, at the conclusion of which the President telegraphed to the Tsar describing the prevailing conditions. He mentioned that the troops were firing against one another. The President requested that a person enjoying the confidence of the country should be charged with the formation of a new Government.

He proceeded: "Delay is impossible. Any delay means death. Pray God, this our responsibility will not fall on a Crowned Head."

The President of the Duma similarly wired the Chief of Staff, General Alexieff, and the commanding generals, asking them to use their influence with the Emperor.

General Brasloff replied: "I have fulfilled my duty to the Tsar and my country."

General Ruzsky replied that he had carried out the request of the President, and sent another telegram to the Tsar saying that the situation was getting worse, and urging that immediate measures should be taken, "for tomorrow may be too late. The last hour has arrived when the fate of the country and dynasty is being decided."

Replying to a deputation of revolting troops, who had enquired as to the Duma's attitude, the President communicated the resolution that the hour had struck for the change of authority, in which the Duma should take the most active part. The President dwelt on the urgency of preserving order. The Duma had appointed a non-party committee with that object.

Later more troops and armed citizens arrived at the Duma where the guard was replaced by troops in revolt, who took over the charge of the building.

At five-thirty a revolutionary escort brought in the President of the Council of the Empire under arrest. He is an ex-Minister of Justice, and one of the most prominent reactionaries. He was lodged in the Ministerial room at the Duma. It was intimated that steps were being taken to remove the so-called German gang once and for all.

The news spread that the revolutionaries had seized the hated Kresty Prison. After a short resistance, all the political prisoners were liberated and the same followed other prisoners to the detective headquarters, where they demolished the archives relating to political personages and organisations, and burned them.

Early in the afternoon the Premier, M. Golitsin, telephoned to the President of the Duma, that he had resigned.

The revolutionaries searched the houses of several Ministers in Council.

The workmen's delegates issued a manifesto to the revolting troops, inviting them to attend a meeting at the Duma, on the basis of one representative per battalion and per thousand, or less. The workmen also respectively appealed to the people to assist in provisioning the troops, pending the organisation of supplies. Civilians continued to arrive at the Duma, in motor cars and lorries, bringing with them large reserves of cartridges, which were promptly distributed.

Orators from the Duma steps dwell on the necessity for the preservation of order and the need for an immediate resumption of work in all the factories, lest the armies at the front should be handicapped when on the verge of victory.

The correspondent, after listening to the speeches, returned to the centre of the town where he found that the Law Courts were in flames. A little distance off he saw signs of the recent fight between the factions of the guard and machine guns and rifles, but there were few casualties. But generally the Government troops showed little reluctance in accepting the inevitable.

TELEGRAMS.

(Reuter's Service to the "Telegraph.")

RUSSIA'S UPHEAVAL.

Telegraphing on the evening of March 13 Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd says that all the military and naval forces in Petrograd have now declared themselves to be on the side of the people. Troops from Cronstadt, with a few officers arrived, and joined in the movement. The streets are now perfectly safe, though there was occasional exuberant firing.

There has been wholesale demolition and burning of Police Stations in revenge for the Police, in soldiers uniforms, manning machine guns and dropping grenades from buildings and houses. The naval brigade, thus fired on by machine guns, retaliated with a sharp fusillade, broke into a hotel which was used as a hospital, and arrested two-hundred Russian officers. They took them before the Duma.

Foreign officers were among those wounded, including British officers, who were treated with the greatest courtesy and transferred elsewhere.

It is estimated that the civilian casualties number a few hundred, of which most were wounded. The streets present an animated appearance with troops and hospital vans. There is ceaseless cheering and a feeling of deep thanksgiving for what was accomplished with so little bloodshed.

When the disturbance calmed, the Ministers were sitting in the Admiralty which was defended by troops, but the guard finally went over to the revolutionaries. The Minister of Justice took refuge in the Italian Embassy from which he telephoned to M. Rodzianko, President of the Duma, to send a motor car to take him to the Duma Committee.

Dubrovina, the Black Hundred leader, was arrested and taken towards the Duma.

Late last night the ex-Minister M. Protopoff, voluntarily surrendered.

The Commissioners of the Executive Committee of the Duma have taken over the Ministries, and other important appointments have been made. There is little doubt that the army is now unanimous, including a number of officers of crack regiments.

On March 14 the French and British Ambassadors entered into business relations with the Executive Committee of the Duma.

The Grand Duke Cyril informed the Committee that he had placed the Marines under his orders at its disposal. The Grand Duke visited the President and also placed himself at the disposal of the Duma. Revolutionary troops have occupied the winter palace. The Duma Committee has arrested M. Goremykin, the ex-Premier. Moscow adhered to the movement within an hour and a half, without a drop of blood being shed.

M. Rodzianko has issued a manifesto to the army and the fleet, assuring them that the struggle against the foreign enemy is not suspended for one moment. Telegraphing on March 15 Cronstadt, Harkoff, and Nijai-Novgorod have declared for the new Government. Political prisoners are everywhere being released. The Duma has arrested Dr. Bark the Finance Minister.

A Resume.

The three day's silence from Russia has been broken by Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd, who, wiring on March 13, describing the revolution which has resulted in the Duma, aided by the army, assuming Government, and in the arrest of reactionary Ministers and ex-Ministers whom the people had long suspected of pro-German sympathies which were responsible for a shortage of food and lack of enthusiasm in conducting the war. Popular discontent has been smouldering since March 10 and it flared upon on March 11. It became a conflagration on March 12 when there was fighting in the streets, in which soldiers fought against soldiers and the people. It ended by the troops, including the Guards and the navy, joining the revolutionaries.

With the Premier a nonentity, it was not surprising that the food situation produced dismay. Although thousands of Cossacks and mounted infantry patrolled Nevsky, the people, undeterred, demonstrated on March 10, and it is worthy of remark that they were mostly of the middle classes. They cheered the troops and some of the latter doffed their caps and cheered back, but to this eloquent sign of the times the authorities remained blind.

Not a Peace Move.

London, March 16.

In the House of Commons Mr. Bonar Law said that telegrams showed that Petrograd was becoming more or less under ordered rule. That rule was rule over which the President of the Duma was exercising control. (Loud Cheers.) "We have every reason to believe that the movement is in nowise devoted towards an effort to secure peace, but against the Government for not carrying on the war with the efficiency and energy expected of it."

Sympathy From the Front.

London, March 16.

Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd says that on Thursday evening the Grand Duke Nicholas telegraphed to M. Rodzianko that, in agreement with General Alexieff, he had requested the Tsar to take the only possible decision which would save Russia, and secure victory. Calm is rapidly being restored in Petrograd. Troops are still clearing roofs and garrets. The partisans under the old regime. The garrison at Tsarkoe Selo have adhered to the new Government, welcoming the latter's delegates most enthusiastically.

The action of the police in firing on the crowds, which most of the troops refused to do, was resented by the soldiery; there were fierce battles at various points between the police and the troops, and many police stations and detective headquarters were burned, with all the archives relating to political personages and organisations.

RUSSIA'S UPHEAVAL.

The Duma met secretly on Sunday and Monday and resolved to continue sitting in defiance of the ukases suspending Parliament, mentioned on March 12. M. Rodzianko, the President, telegraphed to the Tsar, insisting on a change of Government, and also to the commanding generals at the Front soliciting support in persuading the Tsar. The Generals replied in the affirmative, and deputations of troops accompanied by armed citizens, arrived at the Duma on Monday and public buildings were taken over, and the fortresses of Peter and Paul and prisons seized. The arrests include the ex-Ministers, Sturmer, Sakhmolinoff, Protopopoff, and the President of the Council of Empire, Stchaglovitoff. A National Cabinet has been formed with Prince Lvoff as Premier.

A large part of Reuter's despatch is still not received.

ABDICATION OF THE TSAR.

London, March 15.

In the House of Commons Mr. Bonar Law announced that the Tsar had abdicated and that the Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch had been appointed Regent.

IMPORTANT CONFERENCE.

London, March 16.

According to Reuter's correspondent at Petrograd, a most important conference between the Executive of the Duma, and delegates of workmen, lasted all night long. Finally an agreement was practically reached concerning the transition period prior to elections for a Constituent Assembly.

The Executive insisted, in the interests of the war, the necessity of a complete establishment of an order before elections.

M. Kerenski, who is a socialist, accepted a portfolio of Justice, on condition that the Assembly convened elections based on Universal Suffrage.

DAY BY DAY.

The Tobacco Fund.

We have been requested by the Hon. Secretary, Oigarettee and Tobacco Fund, to state that in the list published yesterday the amount subscribed by the Kowloon Customs Staff should have read $34, and not $20.

For the Front.

Messrs. E. T. Land, of the Seoul Mining Company, H. C. MacNaughton of Yokohama and S. A. Southwell of Yokohama resigned their positions last month, and are on their way home to offer their services to Great Britain for the duration of the war.

Bandman Opera Company.

The repeat performance of "Theodore and Co." by the Bandman Opera Company was as great a success as that of the previous night. All the characters were splendidly interpreted, and the play went with a most delightful swing from beginning to end. To-night the Company is staging "The Bing Boys Are Here."

To Be Leased.

The Gazette contains description and terms of the proposed lease of certain Crown lands at Kennedy Town, comprising portions of the foreshore and sea-bed. Two lots are included—Marine Lot 411 and Inland Lot 2230. The first contains about 46,492 square feet, the upset premium of which is $18,597, and the other comprises about 9,682 square feet, the upset premium in respect of which is $2,905.

Unlawful Possession.

A Chinese was charged before Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Police Court this morning, with being in unlawful possession of a quantity of new electric wire. Inspector O'Sullivan stated that defendant said he bought the wire in Upper Lascar Row, but when enquiries were made there, it was found that this was untrue. A fine of $10, or 14 days, was inflicted.

Attacked in the Street.

Two Chinese were charged before Mr. J. R. Wood, at the Police Court this morning, with stealing $49 from the person. Inspector Davitt stated that complainant was walking in Des Voeux Road Central when one of the men walked up to him and spat in his face. The other man put his hand in complainant's pocket, and, extracting the money, ran away, the other defendant following. The case was adjourned.

A Royal Subscription.

Her Majesty the Empress of Japan has contributed Y.100,000 towards the funds of the Society recently formed by Baron Shibusawa, Count Terauchi, Prince Tokugawa and other prominent Japanese with the object of showing sympathy to the sick, wounded and other sufferers from the war in Allied countries. Previously the Emperor subscribed a similar sum.

CHINA AND GERMANY.

A Canton Rumour.

A rumour has been going round the Colony to-day to the effect that the Canton Germans have been ordered by H.B.M. Consul General to leave Shameen, but we have been unable, up to the time of going to press, to glean any confirmation of the story. We are, however, authorised to state that the Chinese are withdrawing all their property from the German Bank in Canton.

We since learn that yesterday the Dutch Consul took over charge of German affairs, and that the German flag has been removed from the Shameen.

WEATHER REPORT.

On the 17th at 11.30.—No returns from Japan stations. Pressure has decreased considerably from Shanghai to Haiphong, and slightly at other reporting stations. The anticyclone has apparently moved farther eastward.

Moderate monsoon is indicated over China Sea, and fog along the coast of China.

Hongkong Rainfall for the 24 hours ending at 10 a.m. to-day, 0.00 inch. Total since January 1st, 1.89 inches, against an average of 4.46 inches.

FORECAST FOR THE 24 HOURS ENDING AT NOON TO-MORROW.

District.	Forecast.

OFFICER AND WIFE DIE TOGETHER.

"No Outlook, and We Talk It Best To Go."

A verdict of suicide during temporary insanity was returned at Plymouth at the adjourned inquest on the bodies of Captain Hugh Edmund Macdonnell, East Surrey Regiment, and his wife, Helen Aide, who were found dead in their room at a hotel.

In a letter read by the coroner, Captain Macdonnell said:—

"It is ages since I wrote to you and I blame myself for not having kept you informed of the terrible struggle for life and the hopeless persistent run of ill-luck that has been ours. But the end has come. I see no outlook, and we think it best to go. But, above all, I implore you to do what you can to prevent publicity, and not to separate us. My commanding officer will explain to you the torments, physical and mental, that my poor little wife's illness, and disappointment of my career have landed me with."

On January 20 Mrs. Macdonnell sent Mr. Gamble, a London solicitor, a letter in which she arranged for the settlement of liabilities; and added: "It is our wish that we should be buried together."

The hotel manager stated that when the bodies were found the heads were together, and it appeared as if they had drunk the contents of a medicine glass simultaneously.

A lieutenant of the Devon Regiment said that Captain Macdonnell had raised a certain amount of money to carry through an invention he had patented, but it was not taken up.

Medical evidence showed that Captain and Mrs. Macdonnell had died through taking cyanide of potassium.

"Conscientious" Loafers.

While the Hunns revel in luxury at their happy home in the late of Man, a number of Conscientious Objectors are housed in Wakefield Gaol in conditions far more comfortable than those obtaining in the British trenches. Theedium of internment is mitigated by the grant of ample leave, a good deal of which seems to be spent at the Wakefield Free Library, where the O.O.s are said to have "overrun" the reading-rooms, to the natural annoyance of local taxpayers. The City Council, however, are stated to be moving in the matter; and we certainly see no reason why creatures of this type should be furnished with mental fodder at the public expense.—John Hall.

GERMANY'S CRUEL TREATMENT.

Belgians Whipped by Officers and Threatened with Death.

The Belgian Government has received a sworn declaration signed by 20 workmen of Ghent, who were deported to the German front in France, and who have since been sent back to their homes completely exhausted and ill.

It is a record of brutal treatment rivaling all the horrors Germany has been responsible for during the war. On refusing to do war work behind the enemy's lines, the men were whipped by officers on horseback, and afterwards faced by a firing party with rifles at the shoulder.

Men fell ill, but they received no proper medical attention, and were put on a starvation diet. "The strongest of us," the declaration says, "could not have endured this for a month without feeling the consequences for a lifetime."

The hardships and privations of these unhappy Belgians began on the first night of their captivity in Ghent. They had to sleep on plank beds or on straw on the floor. Doctors made a rapid visit to the rooms, but only those who put forward any claim were examined. In the morning they had been served with a quarter of a loaf of bread each, with some soup made from rice or cabbage. The only other food they received during the day was at night, when they were served with coffee, with a tinful of preserved beef to be distributed among 17 and even 35 and 43 people.

They departed for their unknown destination next day, October 26. At 10 o'clock they were marched with luggage on their backs between soldiers to the railway station. About noon they were that up in carriages, each containing about 40, and travelled throughout the night, reaching Mons at 7.15 a.m. Here each received a bowl of rice and meat. Continuing the journey they passed through Avenue, Heron, Vorvire, and Marles, where some of the party alighted. The others went on to Dercy-Mortier.

At Marles they had to walk for an hour in the dark to a big farm where 650 men were herded together in barns and stables. Many had to lie on straw covering the clay ground. It was only after the third day that they were provided with wooden planks to sleep on. "An hour after our arrival," the declaration continues, "we had some coffee. Half the men, already completely exhausted by the long journey (which occupied 18 hours) and by an hour's march, had crouched down all dressed and had no thought of eating."

"We were awakened by a bugle sounding at 5 o'clock. Without fire or light, the men refused to come out. The call was then postponed till 7 a.m. Lined up in the farmyard, each of us had to fetch his bowl and go to work. Half of the men went to work, the others remained at the farm."

"After an hour's march, they gave us spades, shovels and picks, and conducted us to a building yard near the railway. In the distance we saw German pioneers (military engineers) at work. At the night, we refused point blank to go further. We pointed out to the non-commissioned officer who guided us that in Ghent they had promised that we should be well cared for from the point of view of food and lodging, that we should work in Belgium, and that we should have nothing to do with the war. Therefore, we refused to work. The non-commissioned officers replied that they could not help it. They made us give back the tools and took us quickly back to the farm. The following days, Saturday and Sunday, they left us in peace."

"On Monday, October 30, at 5 o'clock, roll call and to work, at 6.30 a.m. this time for all of us. The tools were brought up by some 20 pioneer soldiers. We all declared that we were not ready to work for the reason that we were ill-cared for, that we were in France and not in Belgium, and that the work had a military purpose. Our commander, rather an affable man, begged us to work,

otherwise we would have to suffer unhappy consequences.

"After that our commander went and informed the chief of the pioneers, who appeared on his back, together with another officer. The officer ordered us to work. Again general refusal. Thereupon the two men on horseback rushed at us, whipped some of us and pressed us back into a meadow close by. Soldiers had also kicked us. The workmen persisted in their refusal, saying that the promises made at Ghent had not been kept."

"The chief of the pioneers then ordered some of us to advance in order to talk to us. A down left the ranks and reminded the commander of the words he spoke at La Gantoise, 'that we should be well fed and lodged and should not have to work outside Belgium. The delegates and the rest of the workmen stuck to their refusal. At this moment the chief of the pioneers ordered some twenty of his soldiers to lead their rifles, to shoulder, and to aim at us. Overcome by terror, some of the men gave way, and an hour afterwards everybody was at work, giving way under such threats and such pressure."

"The work itself had to be done under the unhealthiest conditions—in rain and wind, with soaked garments which it was impossible to dry at night in our barn and which were put on again in the morning quite wet. Insufficiently fed, everybody felt the terrible anguish of hunger, in such a way that the laborers ate raw cabbage and potatoes, and even a hedgehog was fetched at night and prepared on the stove of the farm. The weak men were soon exhausted, and the sick fell in a heap. The strongest of us could not have endured this for a month without feeling the consequences for a lifetime."

"Officers of all ranks came to see us on different occasions. Each time they made fresh promises; the lodging would be improved, the food augmented. But things remained as they were."

"The foremen were entrusted to announce to us that we could write weekly to ask for food, and that a parcel of one kg. could be sent to us each week. However, on Saturday everything was again changed; we could write once a week, on Saturday, and we had the right to receive a parcel of five kg. every month. The officers declared that we were allowed to ask our families for food (fat, bacon, &c.), thus practically admitting that we got too little."

"Pay-day was on Sunday, but before the money was handed round an officer made a speech in which he said he was instructed by his Imperial Majesty to ask the people to sign an agreement to work, labourers to receive 4s. and skilled workmen 6s. Out of this 1s. 8d. would have to be paid for lodging, whilst the men were to receive 700 gr. of bread and meat, with soup and coffee. The German administration would provide clothing to those who needed it. The agreement was to last six months."

"All the men refused to sign the agreement, and it was then reduced to a period of three months. Still they declined to accept the terms, and afterwards they were forbidden to write home or to receive parcels."

Men fell ill, but no special food was prescribed for them during their three or four weeks' internment. The sick, and the minors of all the working parties were assembled at Montigny in a stable about 33 yards long, where there was a cesspool. There was no fire, and the only bedding consisted of straw."

"It was frightfully cold," the report continues. "We covered with our blankets those who were seriously ill, and during the night walked up and down to keep ourselves warm. The food for the day consisted of soup with pearl barley, coffee, and a quarter of a loaf of bread."

"We complained about our bad lodging and our hunger diet. They promised us some more fire and that we should be sent home as soon as possible. Then a week passed in the expectation of our departure."

"On November 21 the sick who were able to walk had to fetch their food from a village about an hour distant. They got a quarter of a loaf of bread, one-sixth of a Herve cheese, and at 1 p.m., some rice soup. They brought to Montigny the soup and the bread

WOMEN'S RESPONSE.

2,000,000 Register Last Year at Exchanges.

"Every day last month," says Mr. John Hodge, Minister of Labour, "an average of 2,766 women were placed in employment through the Labour Exchanges."

Other interesting facts given to show the value of the Exchanges and the willingness of women to undertake national service are that last year 2,063,813 registered and that 765,481 were found work. Further, in response to an appeal by the President of the Board of Trade and the Home Secretary in 1916, nearly 100,000 of all classes of society registered on a special list for war work.

Mr. Hodge relates these facts to disprove the statement that "women cannot be induced to go to these establishments" (Labour Exchanges).

"The statement," he says, "is not only demonstrably untrue, but it is calculated to produce a very harmful effect on the supply of women for munitions and other war work by misleading the public and discouraging them from making use of the only form of national machinery covering the whole country where demand and supply could be ascertained and the available labour supply rapidly distributed to meet approved requirements. Work being performed by the Exchanges for the Ministry of Munitions, War Office, Admiralty and Director-General of National Service, would, as a result of this, be seriously prejudiced."

"There is room for improvement in Exchanges," adds Mr. Hodge, "and I mean to make that improvement. But while the Exchanges have not, in my opinion, done as much as they might have done, largely due to employers not having made to the Exchanges the demands for women's labour that they might have, yet, as the above figures show, they have accomplished a great deal of very useful work. It is my desire to extend and improve this work, but this cannot be accomplished by prejudicing the public against the machine or ignoring its existence."

The disappointment which was felt amongst women when it seemed as if they were to be excluded from Mr. Neville Chamberlain's scheme for the voluntary enrolment of the civil resources of the country was relieved yesterday by the announcement that they are to participate when the available men have been dealt with.

But there is no need for women, who are able and willing to do war work, to wait until the scheme is actually in operation. Yesterday, for instance, the Government appealed for 20,000 women to come forward and volunteer for work in shell-filling factories.

These women are urgently needed, their labour will back up our fighting-men in the best possible way, and no one need be deterred from volunteering by lack of experience.

It is officially and specifically stated that no special training or skill is required, and a special appeal is made to women who are not necessarily obliged to earn the wage which is offered, that is from 27s. to 30s. a week. The most desirable ages are those ranging between 18 and 40, and best mediums for registration in the present circumstances are the Employment Exchanges.

intended for the men who were seriously ill. The latter were thus 25 hours without anything to eat.

"On Friday, November 24, the guard came to tell us that on the morning we should be allowed to return home."

"Next morning, at 4 a.m. they warned us for departure. We received a quarter of a loaf of bread with a little Herve cheese, and we went off at 5.30 a.m. towards 'Arles,' where we arrived about 6 p.m. During the long journey home—Ghent was not reached until 9.30 p.m.—we received neither food nor drink."

MORE'S "UTOPIA."

Quartercentenary of its Publication.

Four hundred years ago was published the "Utopia" of Sir Thomas More. The exact date is uncertain, but it was issued probably in January, 1517. It was written in an exultant age, delightfully self-conscious in its sense of having left the Wars of the Roses behind, and yet perfectly alive to the horrors of social disorder which followed in the train, first, of the upheaval of civil war and, secondly, of the stagnant abuses created by the old feudal system of the Middle Ages. The "Utopia" in a very real sense is a war-product, both in its protest against civil war and against foreign wars (waged for extension of territory, though not, it may be noted, against all wars). It is the first appeal to principles which are essentially those of peaceful internationalism in the Renaissance. It is written in Latin, and was not translated into English till 1551, when a translation was made by Ralph Robinson, "citizen and goldsmith of London."

The "Utopia" is an essentially English document in its authorship and in much of its atmosphere, and is the most representative literary work of Sir Thomas More; yet it was, as already said, written in Latin, and it was published abroad. It was not issued from any English press in the lifetime of More, nor till sixteen years after his death. The first edition was published at Louvain in 1517 (or, some say, very late in 1516); the second edition was published at Paris by March, 1518; the third at Basle in November, 1518, and the fourth at Vienna in 1519—all in Latin.

This large-minded peace-loving, people-loving work was first issued at Louvain—in the light of the terrible destruction of the library of that city to be accounted in the future an irony of history. The first part of the "Utopia" was probably written by More in London in 1516, and the second part (composed first) was probably written when More was at Antwerp, about November, 1516. The circumstances of the production of the "Utopia" are therefore international. Sir Thomas More learned much from Belgium, and his "Utopia" is a bond of union between Belgium and England from the social suggestions gathered in the former country which are embodied in More's great work.

Amongst the men associated with the first edition of the "Utopia" are Jerome Busardus, who founded the College of the Three Languages at Louvain; Erasmus, who undertook its direction in 1517; John Paludanus, of Louvain, with whom Erasmus lived for some time in that city; Gerardus Noviomagus, also of Louvain, who took part in the editorial work of the "Utopia." Lastly, there is the Louvain printer himself, Thierry Marten, who at one time for a month received into his Louvain house the great Erasmus, ill of the plague. Not only did Marten publish More's "Utopia." In the same year, 1517, he published Erasmus's "Bellum," the most incisive of all Renaissance treatises against war. Such is the pathos of Louvain, the city of culture which produced, 400 years ago, the most noble of political and social suggestions; to-day, devastated of all its literary wealth. It is with pride that Manchester has made itself the centre for attempting to collect books which may serve as the nucleus for the reconstruction of the Louvain Library (of a quarter of a million volumes.) Manchester, therefore, is specially concerned in the remembrance of the first edition of the "Utopia" as a Louvain-produced book.—Manchester Guardian.

Birch for Small Boy.

A small boy was charged before Mr. J. E. Wood, at the Police Court this morning, with being in possession of two tins of opium. It was stated that one was hidden in each sock. His Worship ordered the boy to receive ten strokes of the birch.

ELECTORAL REFORMS.

Some Sweeping Proposals.

The report of the Speaker's Conference was issued on January 30, and recommends in the form of resolutions (mostly unanimous) a series of sweeping changes in the existing electoral system.

On the question of women's suffrage the Conference are not unanimous, but a majority declare that some measure of women's suffrage should be conferred, and they suggest that the most practicable form of it would be to give the Parliamentary vote to any woman on the local government register who has attained a specified age (30 to 35 is suggested) and to the wife of any man on the register.

The unanimous recommendations of the Conference include the following:—

1. Qualifying period for registration reduced to six months.
2. Registration revision every six months.
3. Cost of registration to be borne half by local rates and half by the State.
4. Every person of full age who for the qualifying period has occupied premises of a clear annual value of not less than £10 should be entitled to a vote.
5. No person to vote at a general election in more than one constituency, provided that he shall be entitled to one additional vote in another constituency in respect of his business premises and in respect of a qualification as a university voter.

6. Redistribution on the principle of one member for every 70,000 electors or for every multiple of 70,000.

7. The newer universities to be grouped with London University, and to return three members.

8. Proportional representation of the larger boroughs and for grouped contiguous boroughs.

9. All polls on one day.

10. Returning officers' expenses to be paid by the State.

11. Candidates' expenditure to be cut down and expenditure by outside organisations to be prohibited unless authorised by the candidate and returned as part of his election expenses.

12. Extension of local government franchise without disqualification of sex or marriage, provided that husband and wife may not vote in respect of the same premises.

13. Provision for the exercise of the franchise by soldiers and sailors and by absent voters.

The Speaker's Conference originated in a suggestion made by Mr. Walter Long last August, when President of the Local Government Board in the late Government. He expressed his readiness to summon a conference on the subject of electoral reform which would be representative of all parties. Three or four days before Parliament adjourned Mr. Asquith said he thought the suggestion a very valuable one, and later on he invited the Speaker to convene such a Conference. One October 11 the names of the members of the Conference were officially announced as follows:—Marquis of Salisbury, Earl Grey, Viscount Bryce, Viscount Gladstone, Lord Burnham, Sir Byland Adkins, Sir F. Bagnall, Sir J. Bethell, Sir W. Ball, Colonel J. Craig, Colonel Page Croft, Mr. Ellis Davies, Mr. W. H. Dickinson, Sir R. Pinlay, Mr. Goldstone, Mr. L. Hardy, Mr. Maurice Healy, Mr. G. Lambert, Sir J. Larmor, Mr. Macmaster, Mr. J. Mooney, Mr. T. P. O'Connor, Mr. Peto, Mr. Pringle, Sir Harry Samuel, Mr. Scanlan, Mr. MacCallum Scott, Sir J. Simon, Mr. Tait, Mr. S. Walsh, Mr. Wardle, and Mr. Anceurin Williams.

The terms of reference were to examine and, if possible, submit agreed resolutions on the following matters:—

- (a) Reform of the franchise.
- (b) Basis for redistribution of seats.
- (c) Reform of the system of registration of electors.
- (d) Method of elections and manner in which costs of election should be borne.
